Program Services

How we work with Parents

As part of our behavioral health services, FACES offers parents support and education through family therapy. This program uses a strength-based approach. We help parents build upon what they already know. Our goal is to empower them to grow and change for the well-being of their family.

Support groups provide parents with the opportunity to express their fears and concerns in a safe environment, while learning positive parenting strategies to help strengthen their relationship with their children. The family support strategies are designed to decrease the incidence of child abuse, while enhancing family resiliency.

Behavioral Health Services Include:
- Play Therapy
- Family Therapy
- Individual Therapy
- Parenting Support
- Social Skills Support
- Trauma Focused Therapy

Behavioral Health Interventions:

FACES provides individual and family counseling to remediate or prevent social, emotional, or behavioral problems for children and their families. FACES also provides parent education. We believe that very early assessment and intervention produces better emotional and learning outcomes for a child and helps reduce the impact of childhood trauma.

How We Help

FACES helps children and families through a variety of services designed to promote:
- healthy emotional development and self-esteem among young children;
- successful socialization and academic achievement in school settings;
- strength and stability within families; and
- enhanced knowledge of positive parenting strategies.
